section. These steps are not necessary for all types of selection process. The main aim of selection process is to find out the suitable candidate for specific job. Since there are various factors which affect the seeking of such information, the same type of selection process cannot be applied in all types of selection.

Selection is the process of differentiating between applicants in order to identify and hire those with a greater likelihood of success in a job. Selection is the process of choosing the most suitable person for the vacant position in the organization.

David & Robbins: Selection is a managerial decision making process is to predict which job applicants will be successful if hired."

11.02 Steps in Employee Selection Process

A comprehensive selection process involves the various steps as shown in figure

01. (a) Application Blank

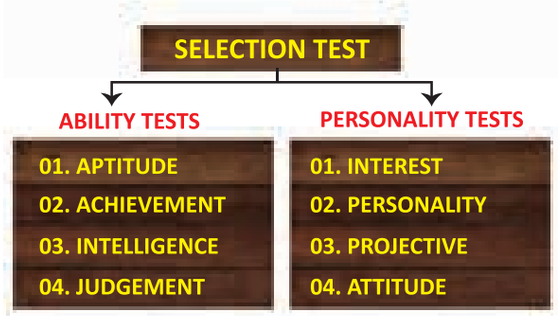

Most of public sector undertaking, various ministries of Government, Selection Commissions, Recruitment Boards and Private Sector Companies either supply pre-printed application form or direct the candidates to download the forms uploaded in their respective websites. In the case of voluntary applications submitted by the candidates, they are issued application form afresh at the venue of the interview to collect complete information about the candidate in the standardized format. Selector can collate different types of information from the application blank namely family background, educational qualification, co-curricular activities, work experience, exposure to related activities, scale of pay drawn, academic distinction, area of expertise and so on.

01. (b) Scrutinizing the Applications

Where the applications received in response to advertisement inviting applications for opening are more, it is not possible for recruitment agency to call all the applicants for interview. Hence, selection committee has to evolve some criteria like age, length of experience, level of education, percentage of marks, higher qualification, level of exposure, communal quotos, proficiency etc., to shortlist the number of applicants for the interview.

01. (c) Selection Test

Several tests are conducted in the selection process to ensure whether the candidate possesses the necessary qualification to fit into various positions in the organization.

A) Ability Test

A test designed to measure an individual's cognitive function in a specific area, such as variety of skills, mental aptitude, problem solving, knowledge of particular field, reasoning ability, intelligence etc. This test is
