TOUCHSTONE: It's a pity that fools aren't allowed to speak wisely about the foolish things that wise men do.

CELIA: Honestly, you're speaking the truth—ever since the fools were silenced, the foolishness of wise men has become all the more apparent. Here comes Monsieur Le Beau.

(LE BEAU enters.)

ROSALIND: With his mouth full of news.

CELIA: Which he'll shove down our throats the way pigeons feed their young.

ROSALIND: Then we'll be stuffed with news.

LE BEAU: Fair princess, you've missed some good sport.

CELIA: What sport?

LE BEAU: I was going to tell you all about a good wrestling match that's going on, which you're missing.

ROSALIND: Tell us about this wrestling.

LE BEAU: I'll tell you about the beginning, and if you find that interesting you can see the end. The best is yet to come, and they're going to perform it right here.

LE BEAU: There comes an old man with his three sons—

CELIA: It sounds like the beginning of an old folktale.

LE BEAU: Three proper young men, all good looking and with great presence—All the three brothers wrestled with Charles, the duke's wrestler. They're now lying over there, and the poor old man, their father, weeps so piteously over them that the whole audience has joined him in grieving.

ROSALIND: Oh, dear!

TOUCHSTONE: But tell me, monsieur—what sport are the ladies missing?

LE BEAU: Why, the one I just told you about.

TOUCHSTONE: Men must be getting wiser every day; that's the first time I've heard that rib-breaking was appropriate entertainment for ladies.

LE BEAU: You're going to have to, if you stay here. This is the place they're scheduled to wrestle, and they're ready to go.

CELIA: Yes, I see them coming. Let's stay and watch. (Trumpets play. DUKE FREDERICK, lords, ORLANDO, CHARLES, and attendants enter)

DUKE FREDERICK: Come on. Since the youth won't be reasoned with, he'll have to suffer for his stubbornness.

ROSALIND: Is that the man?

LE BEAU: That's him, madam.

CELIA: Alas, he is too young. Yet he seems capable.

DUKE FREDERICK: What's up, daughter and niece? Have you snuck over here to watch the wrestling?

ROSALIND: Yes, my lord, if you give us permission.

DUKE FREDERICK: You won't enjoy it much, I can tell you, the odds are so against this young man. Because he's so young, I've tried to discourage him, but he
